This day-long conference is aimed at primary care physicians and other health care providers primarily responsible for the management of patients in the primary care setting whose health outcomes are frequently tied to exposure to trauma and violence.

Overall Objectives:

- 1) Explain the ways that trauma and violence impact patient care and health outcomes.
- 2) Discuss how special populations are disproportionately impacted by trauma and violence.
- 3) Summarize the correlation between untreated trauma and health outcomes.
- 4) Describe tools and strategies for violence and injury prevention.
- 5) Describe approaches for responding to episodes of trauma and violence.
